KIDS ENJOY THE FRUITS (AND VEGETABLES) OF THEIR LABOR

STORY & PHOTOS BY MARSHA HEWITT

NEWBERRY – Students at Prosperity-Rikard Elementary School couldn't wait to check the progress of their gardens every day, rushing eagerly to see what magic had transpired during the night.

After putting seeds in the ground, watering them, mulching the tiny plants, and keeping weeds away, the children were thoroughly invested in the fresh vegetables to come.

For Debra Templin, the school's literacy coach, putting kids in gardens is a labor of love. She involved all 500 students in the SC Department of Agriculture's Farm to School project by using books to stimulate their interest in gardening. Her enthusiasm is infectious.

Eat your broccoli! These third graders loved broccoli fresh from their own garden.

"We had the most beautiful lettuce, and the lunchroom used it to make wraps. All the students got to eat some of the lettuce we grew," Mrs. Templin said. Similarly, a bountiful crop of broccoli was a big hit with the children.

Cabbages were the pride of the fifth grade.

As the literacy coach, Mrs. Templin used reading and a list of great gardening books to create an interest in the gardening project. She also created cross curriculum opportunities in many of the classrooms. The students, ranging from kindergarten to fifth grade, tended three separate gardens. Bonnie Plant Farm donated plants for the project, while the school purchased seed.

The kindergarten class planted squash, cherry tomatoes, flat leaf Italian parsley, strawberries, and red leaf lettuce mixed with Romaine lettuce in a red-green pattern.

The first graders planted peas, potatoes and cabbage, while the second graders had kale and cucumbers. Third graders planted red leaf lettuce, romaine lettuce, strawberries and cabbage. Fourth graders had curly leaf fancy lettuce, red leaf and romaine lettuce, green peas, strawberries, onions, kale and broccoli.

Kindergarteners learned the correct way to hold some of the 56 chicks that they helped hatch in the classroom.

Students were excited to watch the development of cherry tomatoes, which were bountiful. They loved having fresh vegetables in the cafeteria.

The fifth grade concentrated on cabbage, and one enormous head—which covered a four-foot square bed—weighed 26.5 pounds! Not only was it showcased at all the awards assemblies, it also fed the entire faculty and staff at an end-of-the-year celebration, Mrs. Templin said.

All three kindergarten classes helped hatch eggs in incubators. The children learned to candle eggs, which let them see how the embryos were developing. As a science lesson, lead teacher Mandy Waites tracked the embryos, and each morning the principal announced egg updates.

Growing their own food was an adventure the children will never forget. The garden project was so successful that the school is already planning similar events for next year.

STAR WARS, COMPUTERS AND SYD

The year 1977 was an interesting one in the United States and right here in South Carolina. The world's first personal computer – the Commodore PET – made its debut, and Apple Computer was incorporated. The space shuttle Enterprise went on its maiden test flight about a month after Jimmy Carter became the 39th President of the United States. Star Wars was released, and Elvis Presley passed away. South Carolina's governor was Jim Edwards, and Bryan Patrick was the Commissioner of Agriculture. The Gamecocks football season went 5 and 7 under Coach Jim Carlen, while Charley Pell led his Tigers to an 8 and 4 finish, including a 3-point win over USC.

1977 was also the year that Sydney Whalen came to work at the SC Department of Agriculture. Syd began as a public information specialist and will retire on June 30 after 41 years of service at SCDA. In his first years – long before computers were a norm – Syd designed promotional materials for the Department. Had to be quite a challenge without the technology we tend to take for granted.

During his four decades at SCDA, Syd has also coordinated special events, designed and built displays, exhibits and parade floats. For about the last 20 years, designed the Market Bulletin. He has volunteered for a number of organizations in Columbia, including the SC State Fair, where he works each fall.

Syd's resume speaks for itself, but his colleagues also have a lot to say about working with him for so many years. They describe Syd as dependable, generous, dedicated, humble, loyal, kind, and a good friend. Syd has always taken his work seriously, but he also enjoys joking around and using his undeniable sense of humor. We could count on him to be a team player.

Sydney and I would have the occasional hallway conversation about church and preachers and the comings and goings of the small denomination that he and I both belonged to for a while.

After his 41 years at SCDA, Syd will have time to travel – one of his favorite hobbies. He said recently he would like to travel around the world. I sure hope he has that opportunity after making a world of difference in our Department.

We wish Syd well in his retirement and thank him for his service to South Carolina agriculture.

NOTICE ANYTHING DIFFERENT?

You're not seeing things; the Market Bulletin has a new look! The paper is slightly larger and brighter, making space for a fresh new design. With longtime Market Bulletin designer Syd Whalen retiring this month, we welcome designer Stephanie Finnegan to the Market Bulletin team. We hope you enjoy these updates showcasing all the features and advertisements you look forward to in each issue.

FSA COUNTY COMMITTEES SEEK NOMINATIONS

The U.S. Department of Agriculture encourages America's farmers to nominate candidates to represent their communities on their local county committees. USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) is accepting nominations for county committee members from now through Aug. 1. Committees play a critical role in the day-to-day operations of FSA, making important decisions on programs dealing with disaster and conservation, emergencies, commodity price loan support, county office employment and other agricultural issues. FSA county committees, which consist of up to 11 members, meet once a month or as needed. Producers can nominate themselves or others. Eligible candidates must participate in an FSA program and must sign an FSA-669A nomination form. Visit www.fsa.usda.gov/elections to access the form and for more information.

GRILLED STEAK AND WATERMELON SALAD

TOTAL RECIPE TIME: 30 MINUTES MAKES: 4 SERVINGS

INGREDIENTS

- 4 beef Tenderloin Steaks, cut 1 inch thick (about 4 to 5 ounces each)
- 1 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 2 slices seedless baby watermelon, 1 inch thick (about 1 pound each)
- Salt and pepper
- 8 cups baby arugula or spinach leaves
- 1/4 cup reduced-fat balsamic or Italian dressing
- 1 cup halved cherry tomatoes
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced red onion
- 1/4 cup crumbled reduced-fat feta cheese

DIRECTIONS

1. Combine coriander and cumin; press evenly onto beef steaks.
2. Place steaks in center of grid over medium, ash-covered coals; arrange watermelon slices around steak. Grill steaks, covered, 10 to 14 minutes (over medium heat on preheated gas grill, 11 to 15 minutes) for medium rare (145°F) to medium (160°F) doneness, turning occasionally. Grill watermelon 2 to 4 minutes or until grill marks form, turning once.
3. Carve steaks into slices. Cut each watermelon slice into 6 wedges. Season beef and watermelon with salt and pepper, as desired. Combine arugula and dressing in large bowl; toss to coat. Divide arugula among four serving plates. Arrange beef and watermelon on salad; top evenly with tomatoes, onion and cheese.
